Forecast For Northeast England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Wednesday 03 Mar 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Another grey, murky and cold day for many.

Today:
A grey and murky start, with extensive low cloud and fog, which will slowly lift to give some bright or occasional sunny spells, especially inland. Staying quite cloudy and murky along the coast, where it will feel cold again. Maximum temperature 4 deg C (39 deg F).

Tonight:
Cloud increasing overnight, with a lot of low cloud, mist and fog for most. The cloud thick enough to give some patchy light rain and drizzle on coasts and hills. Minimum temperature 2 deg C (36 deg F).

Thursday:
Another grey and murky start to the day. A band of occasional rain, possibly wintry on the hills, will steadily move southwards during the day. Turning drier and colder later. Maximum temperature 5 deg C (41 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
High pressure will bring fine, dry and settled conditions on Friday and into the weekend. Decent spells of sunshine by day, with widespread frosts overnight. Feeling cold.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.